

Student ID Crisis

Common misconceptions happen everywhere with everything. Some things are just misunderstood and the best way to clear them up is to address it first-hand! “A lot of kids think that it’s a lets keep everybody in line and in check type deal but it’s just 100% about safety.” Asis commented. “It is just a safety measure, and a super easy one.” Dr Blanton also on the idea of safety stated “The biggest thing is that it’s just something more that they have to do, but in reality, the world isn’t always a safe place, and this is putting something in place to make us all a little safer.” Blanton also made mention of the Principal’s Advisory group that will be meeting once a month. “If there are things you want to see put in place, contact the people on your principals’

’ advisory list or come to me and we’ll talk about it to see what we can make happen.”

Team Appreciation

Drake Gunnells
Staff Writer

Students at Gaffney high school, many people have been thinking about the teams lately, but is it a team or just one certain player? In athletics certain players are recognized for their accomplishments more than any others on their team. Of the basketball and football teams, only a few students stand out and only a certain number of fans look at that player and not the team itself so the honest answer is how or what can be done to change this for the teams and students’ outlooks. It is time TO MAKE A CHANGE AND GIVE APPRECIATION!!!! To everyone who participates. What can Gaffney high school do better to appreciate the team? What should others suggest we do? We should make banners for the team entrance more motivational, specific topic for the team, should more events happen for the team and consider the team not only by how they look, bigger, badder, etc., but also as they play.

According to Mrs. Osment, a resource teacher specializing in academic skills, “being able to recognize the team as a whole to the whole student body in pep rallies and show our support by wearing GHS colors on game days helps show appreciation.” It is clear to see that the ability to celebrate our athletes through school actions such as pep rallies and wearing school colors as a sign of school wide nationalism will not only recognize our athletes, but it will also help bring our student body together as a whole. The student population can bring positivity that will motivate every student athlete to go forward, along with the ability to recognize individual athletes that may not get enough support through regular news. What could we the students do to not just hype them up but make sure that they have plenty of motivation to win and keep striving if there are a lot of good things being said, ITS THERE POSITIVE ADDTUIDES AND MINDSETS TO TAKE A WIN OR LOSS FOR HOUR TEAM!!!!!! We must think about, if other students are saying good things about the team and having a positive mindset even when we win or lose, it might push the team to play even harder the next game. We do not realize how much the football players on our team go through, with school and practice, then homework and with the added stress of home issues. The biggest problem we face is what we can do to bring it back to the athletic teams and not just the football team and everything associated with Gaffney High School. We need to help the teams and pump up everyone at Gaffney because that is what our school is meant to do, bring all the pride and hope because at GHS we never hold back. Gaffney High School needs a level of support that will uplift anyone and everyone who participates in sports and extracurricular activities. With this we can give recognition to everyone who make up the athletic teams and compete in the name of the Indians.

Juggling School and Work

High school can be hard, but juggling work and school can also be hard. During 11th working and having to go to school was easy, I never had a lot of homework that I had to do. The only time I had homework was when I did not finish a class assignment. I normally got done super early and was not worried about it until the next day when I had to turn it in. Going into 12th I was confident in being able to handle work and school. I did not think that I would have homework. After I signed up for college classes I stressed myself out thinking about college, high school and work. When my schedule was switched to my college classes moving from on campus to the high school I was relieved that I would not have to drive back and forth between home, the high school, college campus and work. After the first week of school I realized that I was going to have a lot more homework then I thought. In Math 120 after every lesson there is a homework page to go along with it. When my teacher is done teaching the lesson you get to go home no matter what time it is. You can choose to stay and do the homework or you can go home. In English 101 we have not had as much homework but everything is on you. You can ask teachers for help and guidance but you do not get over time to work on it. When it is due it is due, no extra time. With work I go in soon as I get out of school, luckily my work is 5 minutes or so down the road. I work almost all week long and most weekends I have family plans. Im not saying it’s impossible to not handle work and school but with college classes it’s definitely a challenge. I have to find time to get my schoolwork done. If it’s taking a break from family things to sit down and and get it done or letting work know that I need a day off during the week just to get everything done for school. My mom always tells me that school comes first so, if I get overwhelmed with work and school then I quit working and focus only on school. So far I’m doing good, my job works around my school schedule. Everybody I work with also goes to college or have college classes so they understand where I’m at.
